OMV

New Business Development Intern

OMV is Austria's largest listed industrial company. As a global energy and chemicals company, the aim is becoming a leading provider of sustainable fuels, chemicals and materials by 2030 with a focus on circular economy solutions – and delivering on the pledge to reach net zero by 2050.

As part of the NBD team, I have been exposed both theoretically and practically to the cutting-edge technologies and ideas to foster and implement the Energy Transition. I have worked on the full spectrum of processes of business development, from pure research to data analysis, to make room for concrete business cases, seen as relevant to move forward sustainability frontiers in existing business units.

World Management Survey Project

European Hub Analyst

The World Management Survey is the first cross-country, cross-industry dataset built to measure the quality of management practices in establishments. It is an international project of research led by some of the academic excellence, among them LSE, MIT, Harvard, Cornell University, and sponsored by global institutions such as the World Bank.

As an analyst for the European Hub, my task is to collect evidence directly from surveying managers working in the manufacturing sector, according to the WMS methodology. Once data collection will be over, those answers will be the basis for an ample contribution to the management practices measurement literature, as it was the 2014 one, crowned by the acclaimed "The New Empirical Economics of Management" by Nicholas Bloom, Renata Lemos, Daniela Scur, Raffaella Sadun, and John Van Reenen, all members of the WMS research committee.

Digital Innovation Observatories – Politecnico di Milano School of Management

Research Intern at the HR Innovation Practice Observatory

For over twenty years the Digital Innovation Observatories have been developing and spreading knowledge on new digital technologies, their opportunities, and their impact on companies, public authorities and citizens. Today, the Digital Innovation Observatories of the MIP School of Management represent the point of reference in Italy on digital innovation.

As a research intern at the HR Innovation Practice Observatory, I have worked on literature reviews, covering the Agile Organisational Approach or dealing with the D&I trends and measurement. I have also performed data analysis on a start-ups database, reporting ventures in the fields of Talent Management and Recruiting, and on results we got from two surveys we distributed to HR Directors and Managers. Moreover, I have also staffed at the workshops and conferences organised by the HR Innovation Practice team. Eventually, I have had an active role in interviewing HR professionals across Italy-based firms to then write related business cases, pointing out the most innovative HR projects adopted by those firms.
